

Unions suspend industrial action over dismissal law changes

 Finland

Public and private sector trade unions have suspended their industrial action in protest at planned changes to dismissal legislation following a commitment from the government to negotiate. The proposed changes would have made it easier to sack workers in small firms. Unions were objecting to the discriminatory provisions and to the failure to negotiate. The unions have only suspended the action and may restart it if the government doesn't undertake proper tripartite negotiations.

JHL \(EN\)

epsucob

2018 November epsucob@NEWS 21

- Printer-friendly version

Policies

Precarious employment

Social Dialogue

Union Rights