

Anti-"slave" law campaign continues

 Hungary

In the latest stage of the trade union campaign against the "slave" law that allows employers to significantly increase overtime work, the MASZSZ confederation has asked the European Commission to intervene. The confederation believes that the increase on the overtime limit to 400 hours a year and the possibility for compensation for additional hours to be spread over 36 months could be in contravention of the Working Time Directive and it wants the European Commission to investigate.
