(Brussels, 28 November 2019) For months, Australian trade unions have been fighting a piece of legislation that would make it very difficult for unions to organise themselves and represent workers. This legislation has just been defeated in the Australian Senate. The defeat is a huge success for the unions involved, and for the global solidarity that was given. We are pleased to have played our part alongside the significant and impressive mobilisation of workers and trade union members in Australia. The result is clear: International Solidarity works.
