

Call for action on a human-centred recovery

Global

The International Labour Conference has agreed a Global Call to Action outlining measures to create a human-centred recovery from the pandemic. Delegates from 181 countries representing governments, workers and employers adopted the call unanimously, prioritizing the creation of decent jobs for all and addresses the inequalities caused by the crisis. The agreement covers measures to be taken by national governments and their employer and trade union 'social partners', to achieve a job-rich recovery that substantially strengthens worker and social protections and supports sustainable enterprises. It also underlines the importance of the role that social dialogue has played in delivering responses to the pandemic and the need to promote collective bargaining and the right to organise.
