

Unions continue campaign on collective agreements in water company

 Portugal

The STAL local services and FIEQUIMETAL industrial trade unions are continuing their collaboration in a campaign to assert their collective bargaining rights in the Águas de Portugal water company. The latest action was in Portalegre, north east of Lisbon where the two unions protested outside the company's local offices. The unions are demanding that the national collective agreement be properly implemented across all the company's subsidiaries and for negotiations on wage increases in response to the recent surge in inflation.
