

Federation warns of workers being replaced with unemployed "volunteers"

 Spain

The FSP-UGT public service federation is very concerned that the labour reforms will reinforce government policy to get more of the unemployed to take on voluntary work in areas like social services. The union has criticised the government for the proposals which it says not only imply that it is the fault of the individuals that they are unemployed but could also end up with the unemployed doing work previously done by public sector workers who have since been made redundant.
