

Interpreters in the European Parliament on strike over changes to working time rules

(11 June 2018) The boss of the interpreters working for the European Parliament unilaterally adopted changes to interpreters' working time. Despite making concessions on their side the boss of the European Parliament, the general secretary, has not come to the negotiating table with the unions. Therefore EPSU affiliate USF and other unions decided to undertake strike action. A first action will take place on 12 June. EPSU has sent a letter of support.
