

Home care workers rally in long-term dispute over working time

 U.K.

Home care workers employed by Birmingham City Council in Central England have mobilised for a rally on Tuesday 29 January supported by their union, Unison, and the TUC, the UK's single trade union confederation. The workers have taken over 50 days of strike action in their long-running dispute over plans by the Council to cut their working time. If the Council implements its plans then some workers will face poverty pay levels and cuts in annual salary of up to GBP 4000 (EUR 4600).

Unison

epsucob

2019 February epsucob@NEWS 03

- Printer-friendly version

Policies

Local government

Low pay/minimum wages

Social Services

Working Time