

Unions break off negotiations with church employers

 Norway

The Fagforbundet municipal union has broken off negotiations over a new two-year agreement with the church employers. A key matter for dispute is over pay for workers with 20 years' service and the union says that the employers' current offer would leave this group of workers around €885 a year worse off than workers with 20 years' service covered by similar collective agreements. The dispute now goes to arbitration.
