

National Gallery staff plan all-out strike

 U.K.

The long-running dispute over privatisation at the National Gallery in central London is set to continue as the PCS union threatens an all-out strike of its members. The union has been campaigning against proposals by the Gallery to contract out staff who provide visitor services. The union says that it has alternative proposals and is calling on the management to agree to talks at the the ACAS arbitration and conciliation service in order to achieve a negotiated settlement.
