

Public administration wage rises ahead of other sectors

 Czech Republic

The industrial relations observatory EIRO reports that salary increases in the Czech Republic slowed last year to 5.5% (3.5% in real terms), the lowest increase since the country was formed in 1992. This is at a time when economic growth is at historically high levels. Increases in the public sector, at 6.7%, were higher than the private sector's 3.2% and public administration and defence recorded the highest increase of any sector at 8.9%.
