

Semester analysis shows pressure for reform of collective bargaining

Europe

The European Trade Union Institute has published an updated analysis of the treatment of social issues in the European Semester - the process of economic policy coordination. This reveals, for example, the extent to which the country-specific recommendations address the question of collective bargaining, with the European institutions calling for reforms in many countries, with the accent on decentralisation of bargaining despite the lack of evidence that this produces any economic benefits.

ETUI \(EN\)

epsucob

2017 September epsucob@NEWS 16

- Printer-friendly version

Policies

Collective Bargaining

Economic Policy

Equality

Low pay/minimum wages

Union Rights