

Unionisation still high in public sector

 Poland

A recent study on social dialogue in Poland indicates that levels of union membership and coverage by collective agreements remain high in the public sector. However, workers in health and education are face worse pay and conditions than those available in the private sector. The study suggests that unions often form a common front with management in putting pressure on government to fund higher pay.

Read more at > EIRO

epsucob

01_epsucob@NEWS 9 January 2006

- Printer-friendly version